SOS Believed From Airliner Lost in Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP)—Faint garbled S O S radio signals ending with the word "Tiger"—believed possibly from the lost British airliner Star Tiger—were picked up along the entire Atlantic seaboard today.

First of the signals was received by an amateur radio operator in Ohio and passed to the Seventh Coast Guard district headquarters. By 3:55 a. m. today the signals were being picked up from Florida to Newfoundland and as far inland as Ohio with stations at Charleston and Florence, S. C., and at Jacksonville, Fla., picking up the complete name "Star Tiger."

Lt. Com. Richard Baxter, head of the search and rescue section here, said the signals were on 3105 kilocycles, the frequency reserved for plane-land voice radio, and that the person operating the transmitter does not know international code.

The Star Tiger was last heard from at 10 p. m. Thursday in a radio contact with Bermuda. The plane carried 29 passengers, including Sir Arthur Coningham, British air hero.

Raft Found in Atlantic Where Plane Was Lost

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (INS)—The U. S. Coast Guard reported today the Standard Oil Tanker Esso, of Philadelphia, has picked up an empty life raft in the ocean approximately 750 miles south of Bermuda.

The Coast Guard said the Esso radioed it was checking to determine whether the life raft was of the type carried by airplanes. A search is being made for a missing South America Airways passenger airliner, in the waters around Bermuda.

Ask Pension at 65 For All War Vets

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Establishment of a uniform pension system under which all veterans 65 years of age would receive $90 a month would save money and ease administration of veterans affairs, Rep. Van Zandt (R.) of Pennsylvania, has told the House.

Van Zandt, former national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has introduced a bill to establish such a system.

In an explanation in today's Congressional Record he says this would extend to veterans of World War I and II the benefits provided for veterans of all of America's wars. The pensions would be based on age and on injuries or infirmities that did not result from service in the armed forces. The bill would work this way:

A World War I veteran who reaches the age of 62 would be given a pension of $43.20 a month. When 65 he would be presumed to be permanently and totally disabled and would receive $90 a month. This is the amount Spanish-American war veterans receive when they reach 65.

The same would apply to veterans of World War II when they qualify for a result thousands of World War I veterans who are unemployed due to permanent disabilities less than total are languishing on the human scrap pile without even the means of acquiring minimum security.

Pensions are now provided for World War I vets but they are limited to those who are permanently and totally disabled. According to this, Van Zandt said: "There are 3,700,000 World War I vets alive today. Their average age is 54. They are dying at the rate of 60,000 a year. This year 75,324 will become 65."

Added Benefits

For Vets in School

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (INS)—The House voted to give World War II veterans attending school or learning trades an additional $367,000,000 annually in government benefits.

(Editor's note: Approximately 34,000 New England World War II veterans would benefit if the proposed increase approved by the Senate, the regional office of the Veterans Administration in Boston, announced.)

The subsistence bill for students is identical with the Senate measure, so it now goes to the President for his signature.

The House and Senate bills increased students' monthly benefits as follows: Single veteran, from $65 to $75; veteran with one dependent (wife), from $90 to $105; and married veterans with children, from $90 to $120.

The House bill changes the existing law to increase the amounts which the veteran may earn without losing his monthly subsistence allowance from $175 to $250 for a single veteran; from $200 to $325 for a veteran and one dependent (wife); and $200 to $350 for a veteran with children.

Herter Files Bill At Barnes Request

Legislation amending the Norris-LaGuardia Act to hold labor unions accountable for violations of the anti-trust laws was filed in Congress today by Cong. Christian A. Herter of Boston at the request of Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Clarence A. Barnes. Barnes said today the action was the aftermath of his successful fight against the Atlantic Fishermen's Union, in which the Massachusetts Superior Court restrained the organization from limiting the size of catches of fish. The union's appeal now is pending before the Supreme Judicial Court.

Reds Report U. S. Landing In Africa

LONDON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Tass distributed a report from Rome today that American "engineering troops have landed in former Italian North Africa."

The Russians' news agency quoted a small Italian news agency, Agenzia Italiana D'informazione, which it said is connected with Italian colonial circles.

Reporting the purported landings of an unspecified number of Americans in British-occupied Libya, the Italian news agency was quoted as saying:

"American engineering troops have landed at strategic points in Cirenaica and encamped west of Bengasi and in the El Agheila coastal zone."

Russia protested earlier against the United States reopening of the wartime air transport base at Mellaha in Tripoli, west of Cirenaica, and the presence of American warships in Italian ports. The protests have been rejected by the United States.

Lt. Stokes Cambridge Bet Purger

Cambridge Police Chief John R. King today announced the appointment of Lt. Thomas Stokes, head of the juvenile delinquency squad and brother of State Police Commissioner John F. Stokes, to head the new gambling squad in a drive to rid the city of bookies and big-time gamblers.

The announcement came immediately after King had conferred with City Manager John B. Atkinson.

King said Stokes will be permitted to select other members of his squad.

The new squad will supersede the two-man team of Patrolmen John Healy and Joseph Borelli, who have been operating in plain clothes since Jan. 1.

Drastic efforts of the city to root gamblers followed an appeal by the Rev. Frank Gerish Potter, chaplain of the police department, and a warning by Dist. Atty. George E. Thompson that he would act if police failed.

Boy, 15, Indicted In Dad's Slaying

Albert F. Laliberte, Jr., 15, of Howard st., Somerville, charged by police with stabbing his father to death last Jan. 23 to protect his mother, was indicted on a charge of manslaughter today by the Middlesex County Grand Jury.

The youth, who was arrested on a murder charge after the killing, was taken into Somerville district court yesterday. Judge Charles F. Cassidy dismissed the murder charge and issued a complaint charging manslaughter.

Hungary Bars More U.S. Stars

BUDAPEST, Feb. 4 (AP)—Communist Interior Minister Laszlo Rajk announced today that films starring Hollywood stars Clark Gable, Ginger Rogers and Barbara Stanwyck would be banned, starting Feb. 12.

The Interior Ministry announced Jan. 16 it had banned the showing of films of six other motion picture players.

They were Adolphe Menjou, Allan Jones, George Murphy, Robert Montgomery, Robert Taylor and Gary Cooper. All but Jones testified before an American congressional hearing on un-American activities.

The Communist newspaper Szabadseg said of the bans announced today:

"Fascist Hollywood actors headed by Clark Gable established the American Republican committee, aiming to expel left-minded actors and to prevent producing of democratic films." It said Ginger Rogers and Barbara Stanwyck also are leaders of the committee.

2 Die in Fire, Leap to Snow Saves Three

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 4.—Two persons were burned to death and three others escaped by leaping through flames into snowbanks today when fire levelled the home of Sheldon Ordway in South st. with loss estimated at $10,000.

Dead were Mrs. Annie Nordine, 84, and her son Edward, 50, who perished despite valiant rescue attempts by Ordway, 50, chief clerk for the Boston & Maine railroad at Concord.

Ordway and his wife, Anna, 48, and their son, Robert, 20, all escaped from an upper floor by bursting out a window and leaping into snowbanks that ringed the dwelling.

Mrs. Nordine, mother of Mrs. Ordway, and Edward were trapped in rear first floor bedrooms. The elderly woman was found later under her bed. Edward had made his way from his room only as far as a living room closet.

Ordway discovered the blaze when awakened by choking smoke. He aroused his wife and son and then, with flames pouring upstairs, leaped to safety and sounded an alarm.

Before firemen arrived, Ordway broke down the front door and attempted to plunge through flames to the rescue of his mother-in-law.

Time after time he was literally blasted back by the fire, his clothing in flames. When police arrived, they found him beating out the flames by rolling in the snow. They restrained him when he again sought to enter the house.

He was taken to Concord Memorial Hospital for treatment for burns of the body, face and hands.

Earl of Derby, 82, Dies in Britain

PRESCOT, Eng., Feb. 4 (AP)—The Earl of Derby, 82, Britain's secretary of state for war during World War I, died here today.

His family gave its name to the world's most spectacular horse race, and Lord Derby long had been prominently connected with racing.

He had been recovering from a cold at his country home but suffered a relapse and died. With him were his grandson and heir, Lord Stanley, and Lady Derby.

For nearly half a century Lord Derby owned and bred some of the world's best race horses. They won for him purses of nearly $35,000 pounds ($3,540,000).

Lord Derby's eldest son, Lord Stanley, died in 1938, leaving a fortune of 2,000,000 pounds ($8,000,000). With the inheritance from his grandfather and father the 29-year-old Lord Stanley will be one of Britain's wealthiest men.

Now It Snows, But How Much Nobody Knows

Snow began falling in Boston this forenoon and the weather bureau said the snow would be followed by more snow tomorrow.

The latest official prediction is for an accumulation of three to four inches in the city today, and "heavier amounts" in the suburbs.

The forecaster said tomorrow will be mostly cloudy with light snow ending by afternoon.

Today's snow was first heralded as flurries which would leave no appreciable accumulation, then given a weather bureau two-inch build-up which the forecasters gradually expanded into the three to four-inch prediction.

The weather bureau said it will not be so cold tonight, with the lowest about 16. Boston's low this morning was 5, but below zero readings were reported from many suburbs.

Freeze on Pay, Profits Demanded by Britain

LONDON, Feb. 4 (INS)—The British government issued a formal statement today advocating a freeze in all incomes to combat "development of a dangerous inflationary situation."

The statement said: "It is essential that there should be no further increase in the level of personal income without at least a corresponding increase in volume of production."

Authorities emphasized that the freeze includes income from profits and rent as well as wages and salaries.

The statement was issued at a moment when a major split between the Labor party and British Trade unions was forecast over an expected formal demand by Prime Minister Attlee for an enforced ceiling on wages.

Four Injured as Stolen Car Plunges Into Malden River

Four youths, one a Marine, were injured today when the stolen automobile in which they were riding smashed through the Malden river bridge on the Revere Beach pkwy., Everett, and dropped 20 feet to the dry river bed.

The victims, all treated at Somerville Hospital and then held for court arraignment, are Raymond Montgomery, 19, of Medford; Edward Auger, 18, of Broadway; Cornelius Cronin, 20, of Mayberry ave., and PFC Emory Macomber, 22, USMC, of School st., the latter three of Everett.

John G. McKenna of East Cottage st., Roxbury, the bridge tender, rushed from his shanty after the crash and aided the victims from the wreckage, partly buried in mud. He summoned a taxi to take them to Somerville Hospital. At the time of the accident the tide was low and police said this saved their lives.

Medford Mayor Hits Pols on UMT Delay

Action on the Universal Military Training bill cannot safely be delayed any longer by Congress, Mayor Walter E. Lawrence of Medford said today.

"We in the United States need Universal Military Training," said Lawrence. "The bill must be passed now, at the present session. The peace of the whole world and the welfare of this country are at stake."

The mayor expressed complete dissatisfaction with the manner in which the bill is being handled, "by politicians in Washington."

SEE POLITICAL STALL

He referred to the fact that the bill has been pigeonholed by the House rules committee without any indication when it would be reported out for a vote on the House floor. Veteran political observers have ventured the opinion that the rules committee is stalling until after the national election in November.

On that score, Mayor Lawrence said:

"I appeal to parents to save Universal Military Training from becoming a political football. Each and every patriotic citizen should wire or write their Senators and Representatives in Congress that they want this bill passed at once."

"I personally have wired Bay State Congressmen and House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., to use their influence in getting the bill on the House floor for debate and passage."

The State Dept. of Jewish War Veterans has joined other such organizations in the Commonwealth, as well as scores of prominent civic leaders, in a concerted drive to force immediate favorable action on UMT.

BACKED BY HOLTZ

Jackson J. Holtz, State commander of the JWV and former assistant U. S. attorney, declared UMT "most nearly approaches the best system consistent with a citizen soldiery."

The organization's posts throughout the State have sent telegrams to the Congressmen of their respective districts, urging their most effort on behalf of UMT.

Holtz told his organization's membership:

"We cannot afford the risk of losing our democracy and national sovereignty by again leaving ourselves unprepared, as was the situation at the outbreak of World War II."

Pilots' Strike Halts 11-State Air System

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP)—A strike of 145 pilots grounded all planes on National Airlines' 11-state system today.

The AFL Air Line Pilots Ass'n said the walkout was "the inevitable climax of two years of notoriously poor pilot-management relations."

The company claimed the strike came at an opportune time, due to the walkout of clerks and mechanics at Miami headquarters nearly two weeks ago.

Clerical workers walked out Jan. 23 because, they said, the company would not give them a contract. The mechanics, who are members of the International Ass'n of Machinists (I.M.), walked out in sympathy.

Truck Union Polls Wage Raise Offer

Secret balloting by 6000 members of Local 28, AFL Teamsters' Union, to determine whether they will accept or reject a 23-cent an hour wage increase to end the 35-day old truck strike, began at 10:30 a. m. today in the South End Municipal Building. Voting continues until 6 p. m.

Union leaders have urged the membership to accept the proposal. Should they accept, it is believed the employers, who are meeting today at Hotel Kenmore, will ratify the settlement at once. Voting started after Gov. Bradford agreed to a union request for a four-hour leave of absence for 3000 members, engaged in transporting essentials, to permit them to vote. James V. Hurst, president of Local 28, assured the Gov. there would be no interruption in the delivery of essentials.

Hub Traffic

This is the third article of a series dealing with a stranger of progress—traffic congestion—which has retarded Boston, irritated its citizens and grown worse decade after decade. The Boston Common underground garage, authorized 20 months ago, is tied up in litigation. The Sumner Tunnel, opened in 1934, was the last major effort at remedy. From that year back to the construction of the Elevated, half a century ago, there was nothing but stopgap treatment for the progress-strangler. Now there are signs a major operation is in the offing, with city and state finally taking up the challenge.

ing for a downtown destination, leaving from downtown, or passing through the city.

Of the $677,000,000 ten-year highway program recently referred to a legislative committee, eight expressways are earmarked for Metropolitan Boston, where $325,000,000 would be spent.

The question of how, where and when the money will be spent in Boston may not be settled for many months but the city's sore spots are known to a legion of motorists.

KNOWS BAD SPOTS

It is a pleasant fact that the plan board, which had to spend $500,000 to make surveys and prepare plans for the Legislature, did not rely on engineers alone. The board interviewed 22,512 motorists, sent men to their homes, asked them all sorts of questions. And why not? Who is better qualified to talk than the man who owns one? (We will have an article on this phase later.) What engineers learned, and

Garage-Under Pleas Ended, Wait Ruling

Final arguments on the constitutionality of the construction and leasing of an underground garage in Boston Common by the city were completed and the case taken under advisement after a sharp clash between Chief Justice Stanley E. Qua, of the Supreme Judicial Court, and counsel for opponents of the project.

The court has been hearing arguments on three bills in equity, brought by 19 taxpayers, to prevent the city from proceeding with the construction and leasing of the underground garage, as authorized by the 1946 Legislature.

Atty. John E. Hannigan, counsel for the petitioners, in a brief argument after Asst. Corp. Counsel James W. Kelleher completed his plea in favor of the legislation, said:

"This is nothing but a gift to a City Hall favorite—"

"How can you say that?" interrupted Chief Justice Qua. "Does the record say that?"

"I think you'll find ample evidence in the record," Hannigan said.

"I don't find anything in the record."

"Have you read the record?" asked Hannigan.

"I have not read the complete record," Justice Qua replied.

CAUTIONED PREVIOUSLY

Yesterday the Chief Justice cautioned Hannigan to confine himself to the record and not bring in outside matters.

Kelleher, in his final argument, cited decisions of other jurisdictions to show the constitutionality of the Massachusetts act. He spoke of a Connecticut decision which held that the control of public parks belonged primarily to the State and that they were intended not for particular municipalities but for the entire public of the State.

"In the so-called dedication of the Common to the sole use of the public," Kelleher said, "there is no assertion that the public uses the land beneath the surface of the Common. Once the garage is built beneath the surface, there will be no further interference with the surface."

TELLS OF DELAY

Atty. Howard W. Cole, representing the Motor Park, Inc., said that the building of the garage had been delayed since 1946 by the litigation. He added that it could have been constructed in 18 months and that the Legislature had set up conditions and safeguards to protect the public rights in the Common.

Asst. Corp. Counsel Kelleher told the court that the tremendous increase in traffic on Boston streets, together with a parking nuisance growing through the years, has made a garage for parking beneath the Common imperative.

The court, he said, must decide four questions, whether the Legislature's act in authorizing the garage was constitutional, whether the city was authorized to proceed under the act, whether use of the Common was subject only to restrictions imposed by the Legislature, and whether the Legislature's power to represent the public was less in this case than its power in any other public property.

McCormack 2d Place Bid Back of State Dem Row

By FRANK REILLY

Congressman John W. McCormack of South Boston will be a candidate for nomination as vice-president and running mate of President Truman at the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia in July, the Boston Evening American was informed by unimpeachable sources today.

Members of the national House of Representatives from many sections of the country including a group of southern congressmen led by Rep. Frank W. Boykin of Mobile, Ala., will support the McCormack candidacy on the first ballot, this newspaper was told.

This is the background of the present controversy within the ranks of the Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts, it was stated.

SOLE HOUSE CANDIDATE

John F. Cahill, chairman of the State committee, has long been at odds with McCormack on matters relating to local party affairs and if permitted to choose his own slate of delegates to the coming convention might include persons unfriendly to McCormack.

For that reason friends of McCormack, headed by Mayor Curley, are determined that the Massachusetts delegation shall be composed of men and women who will support the vice-presidential ambitions of the South Boston leader from the first convention ballot until the choice of a running mate for President Truman, who will also receive unanimous Bay State support, is made.

McCormack, it was stated, is the only member of the National House who aspires to the nomination. All other office holders who have been mentioned as vice-presidential hopefuls have either been members of the U. S. Senate or governors of their respective states.

Chief among McCormack's supporters at Philadelphia will be J. Howard McGrath, U. S. senator from Rhode Island, and present chairman of the Democratic National Committee, this newspaper was told.

NO CAHILL OUSTER SEEN

McGrath and Chairman Cahill of the Massachusetts committee represent opposing factions within the party. At the time of his choice as party leader, the McGrath candidacy was opposed by

One Democratic leader stated today:

"There is no question about it. John W. McCormack will be a candidate for vice president and we intend that Massachusetts will send to the convention delegates who will be with him all the way.

"We are not going to attempt to oust Chairman Cahill. We are going to be certain that our delegation has no weak slaters who might stray from the fold. The only contest at the convention will be for vice-president. President Truman will be nominated on the first ballot."

Final date for filing of the slate of delegates-at-large at the office of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook is March 9.

Under state law 1000 citizens of the Commonwealth must sign nomination papers.

These must be in groups of 250 from each of four counties and signatures must be certified by local election officials as registered voters of their communities.

Presidential primaries will be held in Massachusetts on April 27.

Fire Ruins Convent Hall In Melrose

A three-alarm fire today destroyed the old convent hall of St. Mary's Church, Herbert st., Melrose, with damage estimated at $200,000.

The hall, a two-and-a-half story wooden building used as a recreation center since the erection of the new Holy Child Convent next to it, was across the street from the church.

Melrose fireman Clifton Bain of Engine 3 was overcome by smoke inhalation, but later was revived.

The fire was discovered by William Connolly, custodian of the old hall.

No one was in the building at the time of the alarm but when fire apparatus arrived nuns from the convent were found groping in the smoke on the second floor, trying to save some books in the library.

They were ordered out of the building by Fire Chief Sidney Field, who said the blaze was caused by a defect in the chimney on the first floor.

The old hall last night was the scene of the annual "prom" of the junior class of St. Mary's girls' high school, located just behind the new convent.

Terrifying Dream, 4-Floor Leap Ends on a Sofa

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4 (AP)—Louis Mott had a dream. And what a dream! Japanese machine gunners were after him. Ack-ack-ack-ack-ack. They got him. Mott was dead. Or so he dreamed.

Gut in escaping from his dream Mott leaped out of the window of his fourth floor hotel room, crashed through a skylight, and landed—well where do you think? No. Right on a sofa in the lobby below. He was critically hurt, nevertheless, having suffered severe chest and head injuries.

3 More Hunted As Co-Op Bandits

With one man held in record-breaking $120,000 bail, police today searched a safe deposit box in a Boston bank in seeking to solve the $50,000 smoke-bomb robbery Jan. 9 at the Harvard Co-operative Society.

Lt. Daniel Murphy of the State police and Sgt. Joseph Breen of Cambridge police refused to disclose what was found in their search of the safe deposit box.

Nevertheless, it was learned today that part of the loot stolen in the holdup was the object of the search.

Three more men were sought throughout the East, with every indication that two of them might be picked up here in Massachusetts at once.

De Valera Waits Fate As Eire Goes to Polls

DUBLIN, Feb. 4 (INS)—Voters of the Irish Free State balloted today in a general election looked for a test of strength for the new Clann Na Poblachta, a Children of the Republic, party led by Sean MacBride, 43-year-old attorney.

Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's Fianna Fail party is expected to obtain the largest majority of parliamentary seats but not to win an independent working majority.

MacBride's party, newest arrival on Eire's political scene, is expected to cut deep inroads into the Fianna Fail.

An indication of the interest in the balloting was given when both De Valera and MacBride made election eve addresses in Dublin last night within a few hundred yards of each other.

Thousands attended both political meetings, which were watched over closely by police.

Results of the balloting probably will not be known until Saturday. Even then the full composition of the new dail will not be determined fully.

The Carlow-Kilkenny constituency, represented by five parliamentary members, is holding a special election next Tuesday because of the death of one original candidate.

De Valera possibly will know the fate of Fianna Fail by Friday, when it is expected the bulk of the results may be known.

It is not impossible that MacBride's party can form a coalition with other opposition groups to unseat De Valera.

De Valera's principal opposition party, Fine Gael, has continued to lose ground for more than a decade. Because of this, the returns show general recognition of the demand for a new alignment of parties.

Since De Valera has declared he will not coalesce his group with others in the event he fails to get an overall majority, Eire likely will be faced with a period of unstable government, with the probability that another election will have to be held soon.

The TWA said the plane, carrying 33 passengers and a crew of five, negotiated the hop in six hours and 39 minutes. The record was six hours and 47 minutes. The liner averaged 379.2 miles an hour.

3 JEWS DIE IN HAIFA

McCormack Urges Boston As Port for Relief Ships

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The port of Boston was recommended to the State Dept. today as the cheapest, fastest and most efficient outlet for relief shipments to Europe.

The boost for Boston was given by House minority whip McCormack (D.) in a letter to Secretary Marshall.

"I would like to bring to your attention a shipping proposal which if adopted will, I believe, result in substantial savings in shipping costs; permit faster movement and more efficient handling of grain and perhaps other foodstuffs for European relief," McCormack wrote.

The representative wrote the port, and the rail and storage facilities serving it, "are almost completely idle as a result of dislocation of shipping during the war, the postwar abandonment of the Army port embarkation, and other difficulties that have retarded return of normal commercial shipping."

Boston is on a direct line between most food and grain areas and all European destinations, McCormack urged, adding:

"The port is well supplied with docks, grain elevators and other storage facilities and railroad yards, which can be used at once."

17 Landlords Ordered To Provide Second Exit

Seventeen landlords in Bromley pk., Roxbury, today were given until March 3 to provide dual exits for tenants, following arraignments in municipal court.

All pleaded not guilty to a charge of not having two exits, as now required by law, and Judge Frank W. Tomasello continued the cases.

Fuel Pledged Northampton In Emergency

With theaters and clubs shut down and at least 100 homes entirely without heat, Northampton today was in a state of emergency—awaiting a promised shipment of 18,000 gallons of oil and kerosene to avert the worst crisis yet in the fuel shortage.

Mayor Edwin L. Olander decided on shutting down all public places of amusement after police reported scores of families without heat in zero weather.

The mayor also called on Gov. Bradford for aid and A. J. Gufanti, Springfield area fuel coordinator, was quick to requisition 10,000 gallons of fuel oil and start it overland to the stricken city.

Another 8000 gallons is expected to arrive in Northampton before nightfall.

Although not so hard hit, other Massachusetts communities faced real hardship in the face of dwindling supplies.

Among these communities were Fall River, Saugus, Lynn and almost all of the Cape Cod area. The Cape Cod area was facing a kerosene famine because of ice packs hemming in oil barges and preventing them from docking with supplies. Sandwich dealers have no kerosene but an oil tank truck will be sent over the road with some. State Coordinator George H. Rockwell promised, Provincetown had run dry until an emergency allotment of 2500 gallons was received.

Tenants Refuse Gift of House

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—A Brooklyn landlord, harassed by complaints of a leaky roof, refrigeration, broken windows and inadequate heat, offered to give the dwelling to his tenants.

Sam Yachter, 35, the landlord, had been brought to court by tenants who complained they had no heat.

His lawyer explained Yachter was "disgusted and would be 'tired to death' to deed the house over free and clear to his tenants. The tenants went into a huddle, then came back:

"Nothing doing."

The magistrate ordered a health department checkup on the house.

KKK Runs Out Of Sheets, Cuts Down Parade

SWAINSBORO, Ga., Feb. 4 (AP)—Hooded night riders of the Ku Klux Klan, 189 strong, rededicated themselves "to the protection of white womanhood" here last night.

There would have been more Klanism present, said a leader, but others were unable to obtain sheets.

In single file the white-robed klansmen marched around the town square and through the residential section, ending on the courthouse lawn where they sang "America." On the last note a masked leader shouted:

"May we rededicate our lives to the protection of white womanhood."

A torch then was put to a 10-foot cross, and as it burned there were cries of:

"Where's Drew Pearson? Where's Walter Winchell?"

The syndicated columnists both have written anti-klan stories. As the flame died out, the leader said, "we do not hate any race, color or creed," adding that the Klan had gathered to rededicate itself to the maintenance of "segregation of the races."

Small groups of citizens gathered on sidewalks to watch the parade. Some were silent and others laughed.

THE ASSASSINATION OF GANDHI only emphasizes the astounding historic fact that independence must be won, not given. The withdrawal of the British and the partition of India into two states, Hindustan and Pakistan, really solves no problem, for what the peoples of both require is a capacity for self-government, a social revolution and a modern economy.

For these, the people of India are not ready; no matter what American liberals may have to say on the subject. Nor has the high moral quality of Gandhi's personality, his self-sacrifice, and his Tolstoyan negation of material progress altered the outlook of this people who have for so many centuries been held at peace by the force of an external power.

This is no country of one people. Probably nowhere on earth, not even in the United States with its complex of peoples of some 50 nations, but most of them of one major type, do so many different people try to live together in one area.

LANGUAGES are numerous—147 distinct languages grouped under nine differentiated families. These linguistic differences are largely due to the different racial and geographic origin of the various peoples who form the 300,000,000 and more millions of individuals who compose what we lightly call India.

Tagore once said: "India is many countries packed into one geographical receptacle."

India remains many countries, each containing many peoples who dislike each other. The British gained their authority by superseding that of the Mongols, the descendants of Genghis Khan, who conquered much of the country, following Persian, Arab, Afghan and Turkish conquerors. Gandhi served India, as Sun Yat-sen served China, as Kemal Pasha served Turkey. But his problem was more complex than theirs, for the varieties of religion, caste and conquests had left to India a legacy of hatred not equaled even in the Balkans.

HIS TASK was to overcome hatred which had become a political weapon in the hands of native rulers and politicians. Just as Confucius countered the spirit of war by emphasizing peace as a moral idea, so Gandhi made love the pivot of his political system.

Non-resistance, in his lifetime, won independence from Great Britain, but it did not lessen the hate of Hindu for Moslem, nor of caste for caste. Gandhi succeeded in the least important of his objectives; he ended Great Britain's tenure; but he did not prepare his people to assume responsibility.

It is not difficult in the hindsight of the twentieth century to inveigh against Great Britain's accomplishments in India during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. The story, from Warren Hastings to Stafford Cripps, is a long travail.

But this can be said: Great Britain kept the peace; she gave the subcontinent more years of peace continuously than it had ever known before. Without destroying traditional forms, the British brought into India western forms and ideas.

After all, Gandhi was wholly a product of British education; he studied in British schools; was admitted to the British bar; functioned as a British lawyer.

HIS MIND was formed in a British environment and there was more in his philosophy of the New Testament than of the ideas and beliefs current in present-day India. He was the flowering of the British training of an Indian personality.

It is unfortunate that at such a time as this India is left without British guidance and without the moral suasion of Gandhi. India will fall into the hands of politicians, in the Hindu area, in the Moslem area, in every area.

And not the least evil of these will be the ubiquitous Communists who everywhere act as agents of a wicked, ruthless and utterly amoral foreign power which conquers by fomenting dissension as other conquerors have used military force.

Already in Kashmir, Soviet Russia is stirring all the political evils of hate as she has stimulated them in every weak spot on the surface of the earth.

Gandhi, Britain's most sensitive historical contribution to India has been her ability to keep Russia out. Great Britain no longer stands at the gate. And no one stands at the gate. No one at all.

Bay State Studies U. S. Hospital Aid

The legislative committee on public health today considered legislation by which Massachusetts would make up a 16,000 hospital bed deficiency by participating in a five-year, federally-sponsored construction program.

Dr. A. Daniel Rubenstein of the state department of public health told the members that if the state joined the program, communities throughout the Commonwealth would be eligible to receive $1,600,000 a year for the next five years toward hospital expansion.

Under the program, the federal government will contribute one-third of the cost provided the hospital or the community furnishes the other two-thirds.

More than 50 applications for participation in the program have been filed in this state, Dr. Rubenstein reported.

America's

Backbone

The backbone of America is a long list of names... names of companies known the world over... names that stand for unequalled productive power. You see them in the stock quotations lists in your daily newspapers, on products you use every day, on factories and stores across the land.

As industry has grown, America has grown. And industry in turn has progressed only as funds have been available for its development—for the new plants, new machines and methods that make more and still more production possible.

Few realize the tremendous cost of such development. In modern industry, it requires $6,000 on the average to make one job for one man! This is why investment—a continuous flow of risk-sharing dollars, provided by the thrift of millions of our people—is vital to the continued strengthening of the nation's industrial backbone.

It is in this process of investment that the New York Stock Exchange assists American business. A major part of the nation's larger corporate enterprises—counting their owners in thousands, tens and even hundreds of thousands—has met the requirements necessary to list their securities on this Exchange. In doing so, they perform a service for their stockholders, and for the nation's investors generally.

HE LIVES!

THE ASSASSINATION of Mohandas K. Gandhi has had an emotional impact upon the world of today, as comments and demonstrations show, that has no parallel in human history since the similar martyrdom of Abraham Lincoln.

There is increasing evidence that it menaces the peace of the world in a manner probably not equalled by any act of violence against one man since the assassination at Sarajevo.

Gandhi was not simply a great man, but a good man; and as the still-sorrowing people of many nations well know, the combination of the qualities of greatness and goodness in one man is too rarely achieved and too little appreciated.

It is a tragic thing for such a man to be struck down by an assassin's bullet, for such a crime must be charged not only against the conscience of humanity but against the worthiness of mankind for the way of peace and of happiness and of brotherhood which was Gandhi's highest aspiration.

Gandhi was not a man of war, but a man of peace desiring only tranquility among all nations and neighborliness among all men and tolerance and compassion and understanding among all the religious creeds and sects of the whole world and particularly among the spiritually bewildered racial segments of his native land.

So it has been with Gandhi who, loving all men and lending the infinite wisdom of his great mind and the incalculable greatness of his gentle spirit to the enrichment and enlightenment of his fellow beings is now destroyed in a physical sense by the insensate act of a man for whom, even in the instant before death, the sign of forgiveness was made.

But Gandhi himself, is not destroyed, as his noble work, as his beloved name or his honored place in the annals of the world today and in the eternal annals of history.

It is only the life of Gandhi which is at an end. For there is no work of destruction which could be wrought against the edifice of kindness and dignity and reason and justice which he patiently and selflessly erected for the good of India and the peace of the world hour upon hour and day upon day and year upon year throughout the prolific time of his fruitful life.

The evil that men do is a frightening thing, as the cruel manner of the death of this great and good man attests; but the good that the best of men are capable of doing in the service of mankind and of God is a glorious thing, as the ultimate appraisal of Gandhi's labors for peace and of his inestimable contributions to human understanding will likewise attest.

There is universal sorrow for the dead Gandhi, and there is universal shame for the manner of his death; but there is also universal gratitude for the long life he enjoyed and utilized so splendidly, not in self aggrandizement, but for the giving of high example and spiritual direction to the plodding progress of the world out of darkness toward the sun of hope and promise and peace.

WRONG ATTITUDE

MR. ARTHUR CONLEY, representing the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations, went before a legislative committee last week and opposed a bill allowing cities and towns to borrow money to develop waterpower sites so that their people and industries could have cheaper and more abundant electricity.

"The bill," said Mr. Conley, "is a mortal blow to our municipal finance laws."

That of course is NOT true, since the production of low-cost power would surely attract new industries and employment and thus reduce tax rates much more drastically than taxpayers' associations are ever likely to do.

Mr. Conley's objections to the development of waterpower sites by cities and towns are not calculated to endear taxpayers' associations to the small home owners particularly those who are weary of being compelled to pay as much as 193 per cent MORE for heat and light as people pay in the great waterpower State of Washington.

"BUT WE ARE still the best of friends." How often have you seen the report of that remark being voiced by a feminine Hollywoodian after divorce? The sincerity of the statement is generally viewed with skepticism. At times, however, it is true. Consider the case of the three-times married cinema unitary, Madeleine Carroll. In her third matrimonial venture she acquired as her spouse a handsome 35-year-old Frenchman, Henri Lavolet. Madeleine and her third husband recently spent the Christmas holidays at the Herfordshire, where she was the first wife of her first husband, 41-year-old Col. Astley. This certainly is viewing a matrimonial situation in a broadminded manner. Have you by any chance been married twice? Would you consider inviting your ex-wife and her new husband to your house for a long week-end?

RECORD TRIP: As for that bus-trip record, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cavanaugh of Inwood, Long Island, N. Y., traveled by bus from New York to Portland, Ore. via Chicago, North Dakota, Billings and Butte, Montana, from Portland down the coast to San Francisco and Los Angeles and via Albuquerque, N. M., Tulsa, Okla., St. Louis, Pittsburgh and then to New York. Distance traveled 8100 miles. Jim is 74 years old, the charming Mrs. Cavanaugh is 69 years old.

PLEASE NOTE: All astrologers seem agreed the Leo, born (July 23-Aug. 22), and Sagittarian (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) make a good matrimonial combination. My girl friend is a Sagittarian. I am Leo. So I find this agreement most gratifying. Both Leos and Sagittarians have a zest for life and change and a love of novelty. Or so say the stargazers. If my matrimonial mate didn't like change she certainly would be in a tough spot. I am an incurable sufferer from wanderlust and desire for change of scene. I may overestimate my girlfriend's love for this sort of thing. Recently, after recalling we once lived on Staten Island, I asked her: "About how many different places have we lived since we've been married?" She said: "Oh, about 162,500." I thought I detected a note of bitterness in her tones.

ASIDES: Among the many things about men that baffle me is why women with large faces wear small hats flat on their heads. That sort of thing makes a woman look like a caricature. . . . Chicagoan says she has a pet turtle who is a radio fan. This quaint animal is fond of organ music, waltz tunes and Guy Lombardo. When swing music or speeches come over the air, the turtle walks away from the radio into another room.

LARGEST CLOCK: The largest clock in Great Britain is not Big Ben as often alleged. It is the clock on the Singer Sewing Machine building in Glasgow, which has four dials each with a diameter of 26 feet. How about the largest clock in the U. S. A.? I believe it is the one on the New Jersey side of the North River opposite New York city, but I wouldn't wager a stage on it.

PASSING BY: Dennis Day, clever singer, especially of Irish songs. A newly married man (in his honeymoon, in fact. Inasmuch as I have always been a great admirer of Mr. Day, I wish to assure him should he be at any time confronted with any difficult problems in wife handling, the files of our Horses & Women research bureau are at his service.

ASKING: Query from client Q. Have you ever played tennis? A. Yes sir, but never for pleasure—only when paid for it. I don't care for the game. One summer in Bretton Woods, N. H., however, supplemented my summer baseball earnings by acting as tennis professional at the Mt. Washington Hotel.

THAT SIXTETTE: The original Florodora Sextette continues to get into the news. A dispatch from Memphis, Tenn., reports the passing of 85-year-old Mrs. Sophia Hande Taylor described as having been "a member of the original Florodora Sextette." Mrs. Taylor's maiden name is not mentioned. No girl named Sophia, however, was in the original Florodora Sextette the members of which were Marjorie Relyea, Agnes Wayburn, Yvonne Trevanib, Marie L. Wilson, Margaret Walker and Daisy Greene. Florodora was first presented in New York in 1900. That would have made Mrs. Taylor 37 at the time. A little old for a chorus girl.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

THERE IS an audacious partnership in the recent affair of the Capone moving picture unionneers who were turned out of Leavenworth, where they had served minimum sentences for criminal union racketeering in the industry.

This little revival of the old Browne-Bioff-Scalise-Capone politico-criminal saga began last fall when Lou Goldberg invited me to compose a documentary movie on the life and crimes of Al Capone, having due regard for the fact that the evil Capone did lives after him.

Mr. Goldberg had been warned that he would be blacklisted, blackjacked and blackened by the highbinders who edit, censor and otherwise control the cultural diet of the people of the United States.

He was about to have truck knowingly with the one who had absolutely proved that Willie Bioff, who had become the lion, or better say jackal, of the rich social sphere of Hollywood, was a fugitive from a sentence of 90 days in the Chicago Bride-well.

WILLIE HAD RUN an illegal house. Brother Will was a formidable fellow in Hollywood where pundits and savants of the syndicated column and the radio program lacked (A) the courage to call a criminal by his trade name and (B) the professional ability to trace Bioff's record and prove it on him.

The denunciation of Bioff was the first explosion in a chain of explosions. The Los Angeles Council of the American Federation of Labor came whooping to his aid, and those who run the industry itself were so involved by long association and private financial dealings that they, too, were afraid to repudiate him. Besides, Willie was a nice fellow by the standards of some of them.

Strangely, the A. F. of L. boys condemned all this as a dirty Communist plot while Carey McWilliams and other engineers of the CIO unions in the movies had the decency to damn the lot for a Red-baiter.

BY THE TIME these developments broke and Bioff, George Browne and half a dozen others to the Capone criminal empire went to prison, Capone himself was in Alcatraz and balm from parels.

But the old Capone syndicate was carrying on throughout the movie industry. The mad king extended his kingdom from his cell. George Scalise, like Bioff, with a four-year stretch for violation of the Mann Act, now bobbed up in control of the Building Service Employees' Union, and this, too, was an enterprise of the Capone mob with headquarters in Chicago.

Both the Bioff-Browne union, controlling movies in Hollywood and theaters and night clubs across the country, and Scalise's ring of extortionists were "liberal" racketeers in the Roosevelt-underworld-union tradition.

FIORIELLO LA GUARDIA let Scalise tie up all the elevators in the office and apartment buildings in New York and then the two of them, with a photographer signing a treaty whereby one of the sorriest characters in that nation ever incurred from sunny Italy received the surrender of our biggest city.

Scalise, Bioff and Browne, five other Caponeistas from Chicago and Joe Schenck, the fall guy of the industry, all went to prison. Scalise had the grievous misfortune to fall about of Tom Dewey, and got a long term.

Only Frank Nitti, Capone's old treasurer, suffered serious inconvenience. Nitti, like Capone, had picked up in his travels the occupational malady of the underworld euphemistically known as the Capital Prize, or Big Cheese.

When he was indicted with the rest of the mob, the news caught him in a moment of desperation and he blew his head off.

THE MOVING PICTURE industry never can say that Franklin D. Roosevelt didn't pick up his promises and stick by his pails.

The great anti-trust suit against the movies was fumbled around and filed behind the clock for 10 years, from 1938 down to now. Eight great monopolists who employ hundreds of radicals and couldn't bring themselves to fire them lest they be called "undemocratic," control 3137 theaters, or just about all there are in the United States.

The anti-trust suit against the A. and P. grocery chain was pushed to trial and A. and P. was convicted of selling good food cheap.

The Pullman and aluminum dissolution suits were also tried and the defendants lost. But the movies were not rushed.

"Oklahoma" Singer Wins Film Job

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4 (AP)—Mary Hatcher, a Tampa, Fla., redhead, has a new movie contract starting at $650 weekly. The fetching coloratura soprano of the road show "Oklahoma" got approval of the contract from the Superior Court. It replaces one she signed four years ago with the studio, which loaned her to the road show company to play the role of "Laurey." Court approval was necessary because Miss Hatcher is only 18.

Chico Marx Wins $10,000 Verdict Against Studio

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4 (AP)—A jury awarded Comedian Chico Marx $10,000 damages in his $200,000 suit against Warner Brothers pictures. He alleged invasion of privacy in the use of his name in a movie without his permission. Marx complained that the movie "Rhapsody in Blue," based on the life of George Gershwin, erroneously gave the impression that the comedian once played the piano in a cheap neighborhood in New York.

Leo. G. Carroll in Top Role in Shaw's 'You Never Can Tell'

One of G. B. Shaw's most richly comic creations is the character of William, the urbane waiter, in the rollicking "You Never Can Tell." For the new production, which opens cently on the screen, Carroll has had ample opportunity to indulge his convictions that a variety of roles and frequent tackling of new parts add to one's stature in the acting profession; and variety on the stage should be something with which Mr. Carroll is quite familiar.

From the day he had his first walk-on part in "The Prisoner of Zenda," in the English provinces, to his recent portrayal of the title role in "The Late George Apley" on Broadway, Carroll has played just about every type of role imaginable, from musical comedy parts to Shakespearean character.

"Who's Who's" listing of the number of plays in which he has appeared is legion, and includes an impressive number of successes both on the English and American stages.

Here's a Lesson For Alcoholics

Thousands who have fallen prey to the consuming desire for alcohol today look to the life of Matt Talbot for guidance. For 12 years this Dublin dock worker lived in chains as a self-imposed penance for years of riotous living.

Today, also, the Catholic Church has set in motion procedure that may bring canonization to that same Matt Talbot of Dublin whose example inspired the formation of the Matt Talbot Legion which seeks regeneration of alcoholics and advocates total abstinence as their only cure.

Paul I. Murphy, Boston Sunday Advertiser staff writer, will tell the inspiring story of the former alcoholic in the article, "Matt Talbot's Saving Grace," in next Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with the Advertiser.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"TELL ME MADAME," thing is just a lot of It expresses unimportance. have bought tripe today. And plenty, because it is not expensive. It is my considered opinion that tripe is very important.

COMPLETE PROTEIN

"You said a mouthful, Chef. Tripe is a class A complete protein, high in Vitamin C content and rich in minerals, especially iron. It comes from the stomach walls of the beef animal. There are two kinds, plain tripe and honeycomb tripe. It may be obtained fresh on special order from the butcher, or in pickled form at any time."

"It is the pickled tripe I bought today," said the Chef. "Before cooking, I always make it more tender and the flavor more delicate by washing in cold water, then stewing it in equal parts of skim milk and water for half an hour. The dried skim milk is good for this purpose, or you can use buttermilk. After this first cooking, I like tripe broiled, curried, made into a casserole, or cooked Creole style."

said the Chef, "what do they mean when they say something tripe?" I laughed. "It's just our American brand of humor. But what brought that up?" I inquired. "It is because I

"Let's have it Creole style for dinner, with plenty of mashed potatoes—they taste wonderful with tripe. And for a second vegetable we'll have turnips. You know Chef, that's another food not too popular in our country."

"You say the American people do not like the turnip? Why?"

"Because they don't know how to cook it in interesting ways. Many of our homemakers consider turnips too common to bother with. And they say their men folks won't eat them."

GLAZED TURNIPS

"But Madame, in France we have turnips glazed, au purée, with special sauces, or cooked in bouillon, all very nice."

"Today let's have them seasoned with browned butter and a little lemon juice."

"And just a soupcon, this is, just a trace of sugar," added the Chef. "There is an affinity between a little sugar and the turnip. It will be so good the men and the boys will, as you say, go for it."

And for dessert, we added raisin puffs with orange sauce. If your family, like mine, has a healthy appetite, they'll literally gobble it up. And friends, it's another delicious eggless dessert for our collection

Expenses of Boy Attending Prom

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: In the quiet near future our school is giving the Prom for the senior class. I would very much like to invite a dear friend of mine who is in college several states distant from here. But because of the distance and therefore of the traveling expenses I hesitate to write and invite him. Do you think it is proper for me to ask him? If so, what would you advise me to write to him, and should I mention anything about the traveling expenses?

M. L. Sincerely, this is the young man you really want to have as your partner at the Prom, my advice is that you write him and give him the opportunity to accept it if it is possible for him to do so. Tell him all the details he must know . . . the occasion, the day and date, the place, and (if there are tickets to be bought) that you have the tickets. No need to write anything about the travel expenses, for he'll have to make his own decision about whether or not these will be an item for him to consider. Just write a cordial, direct invitation . . . I hope he can come!

Hostess' Favorite Recipe

By MARTHA LEE

MRS. ROBERT BLAKE WATSON (Polly Blodgett) of Belmont, young, active society leader, was in the midst of a Spanish lesson when we called her. But she graciously offered us the recipe for one of her favorite dishes—Poulet Saute (sauteed chicken)—which she serves often for buffet suppers. With it, she "menus" a clear soup, wild rice and a tossed green salad. For dessert, there is grapefruit, topped with meringue which has been nicely browned in the oven.

POULET SAUTE

Cut up 1/2 handsome, tender chicken and season with salt and pepper. In a casserole place a piece of butter the size of an egg. Heat over a brisk fire. When the butter ceases to sing and takes on a nutty color, toss in the pieces of chicken. Turn as they begin to brown and then place the casserole in the oven, basting frequently with the butter. When nearly cooked, toss in a few mushrooms and later add a sherry-glass of brandy which you burn off. Add a wine-glass of Madeira and a cup of sweet cream. Allow to simmer for a moment, then remove from the fire; add another spoonful of butter and serve.

PRICELESS look is a girl on her wedding day, radiantly gowned in white satin bridal . . . the betrothal diamond on her hand repeated, perhaps, in a diamond necklace and pendant ear drops. But none of the accessorized brilliance can hold a candle to the brilliance of her complexion . . . for a bride is always beautiful. A treasured salon secret, an original blend of oils and astringents, is a beautifying cosmetic that has the potential of inducing the bridal-beautiful complexion.

Treasured Salon Secret Treatment Offered You

PARDON US for disturbing you if you're satisfied with your face . . . but in case you're disturbed by its haggard, tired look at the end of the day, perhaps you'd like to hear what we have to say. About the greatest asset a woman has is a lovely, firm, glowing vital skin . . . and it's something that every woman wants to retain. But just wishing about it seldom helps . . . for time takes its toll relentlessly. We can be indifferent about a lot of things, but not about the complexion.

It isn't every day that we have a chance to let you in on a special beauty secret . . . a secret that until recently was available only to the selected clientele of an exclusive beauty salon. It's about a special facial treatment with oil . . . an original blend of oils and astringents of particular benefit to skin on which the years are telling.

This penetrating astringent facial oil softens and smooths while it tightens and improves the skin generously in one efficient operation. It is applied by simply spreading the oil evenly up from the base of the neck and over the skin with light sweeping upward strokes. Ten minutes of this gentle workout is all you need to relax for several minutes. After you have blotted off the excess oil, your face will be rested and ready for makeup . . . you'll love the feeling and appearance it gives you, of having had a wonderful, expensive facial treatment.—R. M.

For the name of this treasured salon secret oil and astringent blend, phone Beauty Dept., Liberty 2-4000, or write to Ruth Muggleber, care of the Boston American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For a Resort Holiday

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

LIFE HOLLS along at an easy pace under the southern sun. The sea is warm, and the air is balmy, and the manner of dressing is pretty and comfortable.

This season, prints are pale, fabrics are soft and silky, lines are gentle for resort-wear dresses. The angular lines of the traditional sports dress are smoothed into roundness. Shoulders are natural. The dropped yoke is seen everywhere. Lapels, instead of being tailored to sharpness, are curved or scalloped. Belts become sashes, and the sashes tie into soft bows. Pleats are left unpressed or are discarded in favor of gathers and shirring.

The dress sketched today was designed by Schiaparelli for the Duchesse of Windsor. It is made of a pale beige silk foulard printed in muted tones of green, black and white. The long, full sleeves fall from a fitted, dropped shoulder yoke. The self-apron is high at the front and ties with a bow at the back.

DOWN THE AVENUE . . . and it could very well be Commonwealth . . . this Easter parade costume will undoubtedly be glimpsed because it is the kind of fashion that's comfortably smart looking. A New York-designed short-sleeved navy crepe dress . . . its skirt is shirred in front for fullness and its waistline sashed with navy and white checked taffeta. The long-sleeved bolero is similarly taffeta-faced for an ensemble that's as wearable on occasions as for presentable prettiness to the office.—RUTH MUGGLEBER.

Traffic

what automobile owners had to say about their regular driving problems, some day, as our peak hour at the Charles st. circle, for instance, a place not quite equal to Sullivan's in the matter of bedlam or slow motion, but an interesting feature in its own right, nevertheless.

TRAFFIC STALLS
It's not a bad-looking place. The trouble is, when traffic is running high, it's a difficult circle to circle. Cars pour into it from Embankment rd., from the West Boston bridge, from Cambridge st., and Charles st.

There have been occasions when traffic has been stalled from the circle back to Park st. and over the West Boston bridge to the Cambridge shore.

Visualize that sort of setup at a time of fire on Beacon Hill, say, with apparatus zooming down Cambridge st. for a fast turn, and you can understand more clearly why a recent bill introduced in the Legislature carried a preamble denouncing Boston's traffic situation as threatening irreparable loss of property and a menace to public welfare.

The circle has to absorb a tremendous amount of traffic to and from the Northern Avenue via the Craigie bridge viaduct, as well as the two West Boston bridge routes so much for traffic between Boston and such traffic feeders as Cambridge, Somerville, Belmont, Arlington and all points northwest to Concord and beyond. It is swelled, too, by traffic from the Alewife plover, from Beacon st.'s heavy load, and by the vast volume of trucks using Prison pt. bridge to and from their Rutherford ave. terminals.

Deputy Supt. Hinchey of the police department uses only the most competent traffic officers at the Charles st. circle. Those warning signs at exits of the Metro's Charles station, urging pedestrians to lose life or limb in the traffic turmoil, are not the fretful adjurations of a timid Aunt Betsey; they are the height of frankness.

One police officer can't cope with traffic direction duties when the peak hour panels in, Hinchey feels better than two or three are handling the workaday exodus from Boston.

As to the fire menace potential, he says, gratefully and with not a little awe:

"Somehow, cars seem to disappear when the fire apparatus comes—and where they go I honestly couldn't tell you."

2 Stray Cats, Given

Haven, Set Home Aff.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Feb. 4 (AP)—Two stray cats were sheltered today by the sympathetic Joseph Hepler's. The shivering animals cuddled near an electric light on the back porch, caused a short circuit and caught on fire. One, howling with pain, jumped to a nearby sofa, setting it afire. The flames spread to the attic of the apartment before they could be contained. One was put in a mercy death and the other fled.

32 What Harvard's New Coach Faces At Cambridge

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED., FEB. 4, 1948

By AUSTEN LAKE

I WILL RESIST MAKING ANY shotgun guesses on the new Harvard coach since right now Prof. Bill Bingham is shopping around with 40 candidates and prospects like a housewife pinching melons in the market. And I speak with the voice of angels when I say that Bingham hasn't even got his nominations ready.

Haw-vud is one of the prestige colleges of the world, but don't imagine that all it has to do is flutter its pretty blue eyes and coo sweetheart murmurs to have the coach of its choice gallop to the altar. The blunt truth is that many, if not most, of the eligible gents won't marry the job at any price and especially not at the price Haw-vud is ready to pay. They don't want to risk their reputations at a blue-nose puritan institution which refuses to sneak whiskey kermudges in through the freight entrance. They demand 50 athletic scholarships. They ask eight weeks spring practice. They want their football kids free of afternoon classes during the autumn. So they say 'tell with it and stay at their mail order colleges where they are armed with search warrants to whack the weeds for schoolboys of magnificent muscular setup and just enough intelligence to fool the registrar.

He Must Have His Nerve With Him

EITHER THAT OR THE TYPE of coach Harvard prefers is firmly established in cordial surroundings, like Lloyd Jordan of Amherst or Adam Walsh at Bowdoin where, if they flop in a couple of major games, the alumni don't stick fluted tongues between teeth and blow bubbling streams of rawberries as though they had, personally, fumbled a touchdown pass in the end zone or fumbled on the lip of the goal.

The coach who comes to Harvard must have his nerve with him and be resigned to accepting some rousing kicks in the hip pocket from rival teams. Because he won't have any aid from the icemen, coal shovelers or artisan auxiliaries which make football such a significant part of life in other institutions.

Lets look the Harvard situation squarely in the tonsils. Because I have always felt that Harvard could, without stretching its conscience, have adopted a perfectly moral and legal scheme of getting football talent, as Princeton, Yale and Dartmouth, to mention a few, have been doing for years.

There is nothing unethical about sending a Harvard coach on tactful and persuasive tours of the chain of Harvard alumni clubs across the country. Nor is their anything wrong if the chapters, each and all, begin giving scholarships to schoolkids in their respective regions on a balance of brain, brawn and personality instead of pure scholarly brilliance. And pretty soon the Harvard clubs would cease feeding alma mammy with serawny, myopic types who are gilded in such abstract sciences as differential calculus, but are very knocky in the knees, and begin shipping along kids with adequate brains, but noticeably thick through the shoulders, bony of jaw and slippery in the hips.

If a scholarship student can block and tackle or avoid same, or if he has a nifty straight arm and a pair of piano legs, these would be considered no impediment, even if his scholarship is a bit casual. So the kids selected would be neither intellectual marvels nor shaggy brutes. They would represent boys chosen for the best blend of mind and body.

What's Wrong

THERE IS NOTHING sinister or diabolical, to fine old collegiate rituals in this. Yet Harvard's academic side has dictated the scholarship policies of its alumni as a demanding mental paragon and merely requiring a doctor's certificate with each prodigy that is unlikely to come down with whooping gallstones or web feet during the next four years. Harvard heads take the attitude that they are running a cultural plant for the nation's better brains and not running a football circus for the amusement of people who can pay $2.00 and $3.75 to sit on the lawn, shiver, and watch 22 kids wrestle in a windbag. Still, as I have often said, Harvard is in the football business just the same and selling a shoddy article at top prices and scheduling money games with physical superiors for the sake of the gate.

Thus for many autums the half hour following big games has seen the Crimson crowds disperse without any whoops or capers because, obviously, there was nothing to whoop and caper about. The crowds just wandered off to forget with the aid of restoratives.

The Harvard student body has been average as to wind and limb with now and then a young male bull. But there have never been enough male bulls at one time to match the prize herds and cultured buffaloes of most other large universities. So its coaches have been limited to kneeling down beside their beds at night and praying divine Providence to steer a pair of beefy tackles through the gates, which are left suggestively ajar. And, please, if it isn't stretching heavenly patience beyond the limit of its elastic, throw in two leggy half-backs and a quarterback who is smart in the head. But these prayers are rarely answered because the Lord helps those who help themselves.

So that sums up the reasons why Bingham is having his headaches in picking a coach who is willing to have his hide fried on the Harvard griddle. Because about the only victories that he is apt to win will be the triumph of office principle and until Harvard decides to do unto its neighbors as its neighbors are doing unto Harvard—i. e. employ the legitimate weapons at its command, it will continue to lose nobly, but indubitably.

Chandler, Lonely, Threatens To Quit at Sox Farm Dinner

COMR. CHANDLER

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 4 (AP)—Albert B. (Happy) Chandler, baseball's high commissioner, is a lonely man—at least where the national pastime is concerned.

"When a man takes a job like mine, he makes a lot of sacrifices," Chandler said last night at a dinner meeting attended by officials of the Boston Red Sox and their recently acquired farm club, the Scranton Miners of the class A Eastern League.

Purpose of the meeting was to introduce the Miners' new president and business manager, Ed Doherty, and new manager, Mike Riba.

Chandler went on to explain that his feeling of loneliness resulted from the fact that as baseball commissioner he must remain aloof from all parties, from any close associations with those connected with professional baseball. Contrary to the general impression, Chandler continued, most baseball rules are made by the club owners and not by the commissioner.

"Of course," he added, "if the baseball owners ever made an indecent rule and wouldn't change it, they would have to find a new commissioner."

He did not elaborate. Among those attending the meeting were Joe Cronin and Joe McCarthy of the Red Sox, Steve O'Neill, Cleveland manager, and Tom Richardson, president of the Eastern League.

Leafs 16th Try to Break Hub Hex

By BILL GRIMES

Under cover of darkness, Maj. Constantine Falkland Kerrys Smythe detained at Back Bay Station last night and checked in at the University Club. Maj. Smythe blazed the trail for the Toronto Maple Leafs, who will meet the Bruins tonight at the Boston Garden.

He's on his way home, after a month's vacation at Palm Beach, Fla. He's well-tanned and in high spirits.

During the Major's absence, the Maple Leafs followed the same pattern they've copied all season—halls of fire on their home ice but vulnerable on the road.

Since the first of the year, the world's champions haven't won a game away from home. They were beaten in Detroit, Montreal and here and tied in the Motor City, Chicago and New York. On the other hand they won six and were tied by Rangers in Toronto, over the same stretch. For the season, Toronto has made 33 points at home but only 19 on the road.

This Maple Leafs haven't won a game here since March 6, 1945. And that's the reason Major Smythe is in our midst. The "Champs" have made 15 bids to beat the Bruins here since hanging up their last victory at the Boston Garden. They have managed to get a couple of ties each year but many a win.

However, the Bruins haven't turned a win which could be referred to as a good game since they beat Toronto a fortnight ago. They have lost three straight—all on home ice—and also Milt Schmidt, who went back on the injured list last Sunday night.

hockey during the six weeks Milt Schmidt was out of the lineup than they did in their last four starts. Yet, their record was eight defeats against four wins, and as many ties. Starting in December they were in third place, a game and a half behind the pacesetter Red Wings. But they've picked up only 18 points in their last 26 games and are deadlocked with Canadiens for fourth place, eight and a half games off the top.

Milt Schmidt's latest injury could very well cost the Bruins a playoff berth. Schmidt was just about running into shape when he was put out of commission by Murph Chamberlain. The Bruins cannot afford to lose any center ice man, let alone Milt Schmidt.

This season, the Bruins have used Milt Schmidt, Eddie Sandford, Billy Taylor, Don Gallinger, Paul Ronny and Johnny Quilty at center ice. Sandford and Gallinger are the only centers available tonight. So it could be that Coach Dit Clapper will give little Keny Smith a crack at the playmaker's berth. Offsetting his lack of size by his aggressiveness, Keny has been a fine winger. He might show to even better advantage at center.

Eddie Sandford and Ed Harrison returned this morning from Toronto, where they attended the funeral of the latter's father.

Devens Sextet Faces Harvard

In the first meeting between the two schools, Harvard and the University of Mass. at Fort Devens will be pitted against each other tonight at the Arena at 8:00 with an Atlantic League contest involving the Needham Rocks and the Boston Junior Olympics, following it.

Both teams have been weakened by mid-year graduations. Harvard lost the services of veteran forwards John Crocker and Bob Felony with notable replacements, although there is a possibility that the stylish Bill Garrity of Medford may become shortly available. Garrity is currently on the academic probation list.

The Chiefs were hit with the loss of regular center John Kelley and Joe Marino, one of the best scoring wingers on the squad. However, Coach Ronnie Cahill still has perhaps the top college goalie around these parts in Hal Downes of Stoneham, who has turned in some exceptional performances in the net.

Harvard will be favored to continue the style that has seen them swamp enemy goalies with the flying disc. In the two games before last night's Northeastern tilt they ran up a total of 29 scores. Harvard's varsity, at Greeter, Washington, D. C. R. C. McCann, rd. Devens—Downes, c. Wakeham, rd.

Priest's Return To Fistic Heights Traced to Norton

By JACK CONWAY

IF AL (RED) PRIEST wins from Charley Fusari in their 10-round bout at a Callahan A. C. show at the Garden on Feb. 16, he will take on Pete Mead in a return contest for the Goodwin A. C. on March 1.

Priest skyrocketed back into the top money by his impressive showing against Mead. Prior to the Mead bout, Priest had lost twice to Ralph Zaneli and dropped a close decision to Anton Raadik in Chicago. Though beaten by Raadik, Priest showed flashes of his old fistic class in that contest.

Matty Norton took charge of Priest's training for the Mead bout and had the Cambridge redhead in the best possible condition when he entered the ring. It was a key bout in Priest's fistic career. A defeat would have dropped him from a position with the headlines.

Priest recognized his situation and fought at a furious pace from the opening session. Ordinarily Priest is a slow starter, but against Mead he opened at a fast pace and maintained it for four rounds when he slowed down. When hard pressed in the closing sessions, Priest was able to rally enough to win.

Mead will prove a good card in Boston. He is a rugged, two-fisted fighting man who keeps getting better the longer a bout goes. When he meets Priest in a return bout, he will not lack for backers.

Fusari's Manager Had Part of Walcott

VIC MARCELLA, manager of Charley Fusari, had a half interest in Jersey Joe Walcott at the time Tippy Larkin was knocked out by Fusari in the New York Garden last year before 18,556 persons who paid $116,000 into the box office. The owner of the other 50 per cent in the Walcott management were anxious to acquire a half interest in Fusari. Rather than agree to such a proposal, Marcella gave up his share of Walcott.

At the time Marcella felt Fusari was the better prospect of the two boxers, Walcott is matched to battle for Joe Louis' title at the Yankee Stadium, New York, on June 23. Marcella, however, feels that over the years he will make more money with Fusari than he could with Walcott unless the latter happens to win the world championship from Louis.

Fusari was a milkman when he started boxing, and he still keeps his old job.

"I might as well do my road work delivering milk," said Fusari when last in Boston.

Fusari and Priest each will receive 27½ per cent of the receipts. A net gate of $30,000 would give each boxer $8,250.

Weight forfeits calling for 154 pounds have been posted.

Gordon Hanlon Will Visit Santa Anita

I met Gordon Hanlon, former head of the Aldridge Investment Trust, which controlled Suffolk Downs for a time, hurrying to get train reservations for California. "I have some business in Texas and will then go on to California," said Hanlon. "While in California, I shall take in the races at Santa Anita. I have retained all of my interest in racing. Hanlon secured the controlling stock of Suffolk Downs from Charles F. Adams and Bruce Wetmore for $1,100,000 while acting for the Aldridge Investment Trust. This stock was held disposed of under an order from the federal court for $3,600,000.

"When I took over the Aldridge Investment Trust," said Hanlon, "it had assets of about $1,900,000. The Suffolk Downs deal helped adjust the financial difficulties of the Trust."

Hanlon says he has no intention of trying to organize a syndicate to purchase a race track at this time.

"Race track stocks in many instances are too high," he declared. "Overhead has increased, while their is a drop in the mutual handle in most places."

"When I operated Suffolk Downs, our overhead was $42,000 a year. This overhead has increased in recent years."

"I am sorry to see the conflicts between New England race tracks. The addition of Lincoln Downs to the list of New England tracks caused the present trouble. I do not see how the situation can be solved as it is unlikely that Suffolk Downs and Rockingham Park would agree to give Narragansett Park and Lincoln Downs the two Rhode Island tracks, as many racing dates as they desire."

"It was easier to make adjustments when there were only three tracks and they were located in three different States. Each track could then take one-third of the racing pie."

BLIND IN LEFT EYE, BOBBY RUFFIN QUILTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—The professional boxing career of Bobby Ruffin, which began 10 years ago this month, apparently is ended.

His co-manager, Maurie Waxman, said Ruffin is "practically sightless in his left eye," and will undergo an operation at the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital within the next three days.

Ruffin lost a decision to Al

Pennino in his last bout, Jan. 10, in Brooklyn. He complained early in the fight that he couldn't see Pennino's right hand punches. Afterwards, the New York Athletic Commission suspended Ruffin for his poor showing.

Four years ago as a leading lightweight and welterweight contender, Ruffin defeated Beau Jack and Johnny Greco.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED. FEB. 4, 1948

Vancouver Girl 2d in Skiing; Tired Babe Ruth Thaw Halts Hockey, Skating Arrives in Miami

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 4 (AP)—Gretchen Fraser of Vancouver, Wash., won second place in the women's Alpine combined ski test in the winter Olympics today as a thaw paralyzed figure skating and threatened abandonment of that event.

After a great comeback in the zig-zag slalom, Mrs. Fraser was edged out of first place by Trude Beiser of Austria by the slender margin of 37-100 of a point.

Alpine combined consists of downhill skiing, in which the United States star was 11th, and slalom. She had the second best time in the latter event—two minutes and one second.

Duredevil French ski ace Henri Oreiller captured the men's Alpine championship with no Americans among the top six finishers.

The best U. S. showing was by Jack Reddish of Salt Lake City, Utah, who finished 12th.

Meanwhile, the threat arose that the unseasonably warm weather may prevent completion of the figure skating events—America's one big hope for an Olympic championship.

If the weather doesn't chill quickly—the Olympics end Sunday night—the longtime ambition of Dick Button to take the men's figure skating title back to Englewood, N. J., may die in the wash of the St. Moritz rinks. Dick won half the title Monday by leading in compulsory figures.

Figure skating was postponed for the second time today, and for a while officials were considering moving the men's and women's tests to an artificial rink in Zurich, two hours away.

But Mayor Carl Nater of St. Moritz said: "Everything, including figure skating, must be held here. 'He added it 'will be impossible' to extend the games."

H. J. Clark, president of the International Skating Union, said: "If figure skating cannot be concluded due to poor ice, the Olympic pic championship in that event will be abandoned."

U. S. Drops to 7th Place in Olympics

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 4 (AP)—Four skiers triumphed pushed the United States back into seventh place in the unofficial team standing of the fifth winter Olympics today.

Sweden still leads after the sixth days competition. The standings, figured on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 point basis for the first six winners, follow:

Sweden 46, Norway 48½, Switzerland 46, Finland 38, Austria 38, France 27, United States 20½, Italy 11, Holland 6, Belgium 3, Hungary 3, Britain 2, Canada ½.

The great home run men, accompanied by his wife, intends to enjoy a month of relaxation and recuperation at Miami Beach. Only recently he was discharged from the New York Neurological Institute after a 17-day general checkup.

Ruth will be 33 on Saturday and newsmen asked him how he felt at that age. To which the Babe responded:

"Right now, I feel like 90. I'm weak; I've got no strength. I'm just going to try to get rid of this pain, that's all."

BOSTON GARDEN

School Leaders Laud Hearst Title Hoop Tilt

By PAT HORNE

For the first time in the history of the Boston Basketball Conference, the winner of the in-town loop will face the conqueror of the district schools in a game sponsored by the Boston American-Record and Sunday Advertiser.

The battle for the title of "city champion" will be played at Boston Garden March 5 as the first half of a double-header. The other presentation will be the Boston Celtics-St. Louis Bombers duel.

"It is a wonderful thing to see schoolboy basketball being elevated to such a high spot," said Joe McKenney, physical director of Boston schools. "This battle of champions should prove to be one of the outstanding hoop games of the school season."

Bill Ohrenberger, former English High coach and presently advising McKenney, agrees this is "the biggest thing ever to happen in Boston schoolboy basketball."

McKenney and Ohrenberger, along with these papers, have ironed out all the details for the coming contest.

The only other time we see the leader of each league against each other is in the clash which decides who will receive the invitation to the Metropolitan Hoop Tournament.

To the winner of the American-Record sponsored game will go a beautiful trophy which is to be kept as the permanent possession of the "champ of champs."

B. C. High, undefeated during this season, appears to be the class of the In-Town schools although it has faltered badly in its last two outings. Earlier this week the Eagles had to come from behind in the closing minutes to edge a not-too-powerful Dorchester five.

ALL STAR GAME—ST. LOUIS—TUESDAY, JULY 13, 1948

46 Night Games Added to A. L. List

CHICAGO, Feb. 4 (AP)—With the Detroit Tigers coveting under floodlights at their Briggs Stadium home for the first time next season, the American League 1948 schedule lists a record high of 194 nocturnal contests.

The only ball park in the major league without night playing equipment, now that the Detroit field has been wired, is the National League's Wrigley Field, home of the Chicago Cubs.

The St. Louis Browns have scheduled 40 night encounters at home to lead the list. Washington 25 and Chicago White Sox 21.

Detroit, New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox will play a minimum of 14 night games apiece in their bids for the junior circuit pennant. In all, 46 more are light days are slated this season than last when 148 were booked.

The flag chase of 154 games for each club will open April 19 with the usual New York at Washington inaugural and a Patriots' Day double-header at Boston between Philadelphia and the Red Sox.

St. Louis is at Cleveland and Detroit at Chicago the following day. The campaign ends Oct. 3.

Each club has an even dozen weekdays at home with the exception of Washington, which has 11.

Scribes Back Mahoney's Turf Reforms

By ALEXANDER GIFFORD

(This is the 11th of a series of articles giving the "inside story" of how Racing Commission Chairman George Mahoney ran race-track crookedness out of Maryland.)

The receiving barn continued to have its firm enemies, among them Mr. Parr, George D. Widener, owner of race horses and head of Belmont race track, and W. L. Brann, Maryland owner and breeder, whose stable had been one of the five which adthe probabilities are they sometimes sleep, too.

"We can't see how one check against crookedness in racing is an indignity while another check and precaution (the saliva test in force at Belmont Park) is not."

"And surely Mr. Widener would be the last to want to remove all checks and protections to the public. Because he would know, just as everybody else knows, that in such an event there would be no racing in this country within a year."

PARKER COMMENTS
About the same time, also discussing the withdrawal of Lucky Draw, Dan Parker, writing in the New York Daily Mirror, said in his column:

"George Widener . . . enjoys the doubtful distinction of being the owner of the first race horse who flunked the saliva test in New York state when it was inaugurated back in 1934."

"On Aug. 1 of that year, Mr. Widener's three-year-old gelding, Brown Jack, was found to be the first to fail the saliva test at Saratoga as a 12-to-1 shot, and the assistant pended."

"Mr. Widener was in Europe at the time . . . If the mandatory receiving barn had been in effect under Maryland rules which relieve the owner and trainer of responsibility in such cases, this unpleasant publicity would not have come to the wealthy sportsman who now is throwing his weight against the Maryland receiving barn plan . . ."

It is interesting to record that Mahoney went out of office in July, 1947, and that the Widener and Brann strings returned to Maryland racing in October, 1947, at the Laurel meeting, although the receiving barn is still in mandatory operation.

Yet the opposition, even now that Mahoney and the racing commission have parted company, still exists, though the barn is still in operation, much as it was operated in the Mahoney days.

But nothing has come of it yet.

In closing the discussion of Mahoney's activities in ridding Maryland of doped horses, perhaps the most conclusive evidence in his behalf is contained in two letters from Commr. Anslinger, never before published. They read, in part:

"For a considerable period during 1946, we assigned an undercover agent to the various Maryland tracks.

"He became closely associated with owners, trainers and other employees at the Maryland tracks."

"He stated that as far as he could ascertain there was no drugging of horses, particularly because of the biological (mouse) tests and the receiving barn."

"He also stated that the rank and file of horsemen were pleased with these protective measures, although there were a few who grumbled, which could be expected."

QUOTES REPORT

After quoting the agent's report in detail, Commissioner Anslinger continued:

"The report of this man speaks for itself and is a tribute to your untiring efforts under almost intolerable criticism to suppress the abuse of drugs at race tracks."

"Your staff is on the alert . . . it is, as far as I know, the one real constructive effort that is being done in this field."

In a later letter, written in May of this year, Commissioner Anslinger quoted a horseman having told his agent:

"I can't get away with anything here, but I don't feel bad about it, because I know nobody else can, either."

As we said at the beginning of this article:

"No Dopes run in Maryland."

In tomorrow's Boston American will be revealed more of the story of how George P. Mahoney warred on the doping of race horses.

AHA, With Help of Pros Pushes Development Plans

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Hoyas Give H. C. Jitters

By FRED HOEY

"Doggie" Julian's great Holy Cross basketball team cleared another hurdle toward its second NCAA title by defeating a very good Georgetown team, 70-51, before 9,038 fans at Boston Garden last night.

In a nerve tingling Ivy League game, which was won in the last few seconds, Harvard upset Princeton, 47-45, in one of the warmest finishes witnessed this season on the Garden court. The score at half time was H.S. 37-31, but this is only part of the story. Georgetown went out front twice in this half. It really looked bad for the Crusaders as the Hoyas refused to permit them to work in for close-up shots. Georgetown tied up the game, 15-15, in 10 minutes and then for the balance of the half the game see-sawed. It was only near the end of the period that the Crusaders settled down to their usual sparkling game and forged ahead.

Harvard staged a magnificent rally to overcome Princeton. It was the game of games. Apparently outclassed, 31-22, at the end of the half, the Crimson came with a rush in the last half. The last two minutes of play were chock-full of exciting moments. When Capt. George Hauptfurther tied up the game at 45-45 with less than a 30 seconds to go the crowd was in an uproar.

Classy Field of BAA Jumpers May Upset 17-Year-Old Mark

George Spitz' 17-year-old Boston A. A. high jump record—the most elderly mark surviving on the winter track circuit—will be under fire at the Garden on Saturday night.

A field involving five jumpers who have soared 6 ft. 7 in. or higher will assail the old New York U. jumper's 6-8 1/2 B. A. A. mark, made at the Boston Arena in 1932.

The class and the competition may finally bring down this "antique" of the record books.

The top aspirants are: John Vislocky, New York A. C., 1947 winner at 6-7 1/2; Dave Albritton, 35, of Dayton, O., Olympic runner-up in '36, former co-holder of the world record at 6-9 1/2; Dick Phillips, Brown sophomore of Hingham, Prout winner with a meet record of 6-7 in his first venture in "big time" jumping.

Irving (Moon) Mondschien of New York U., holder of the indoor IC4-A record of 6-7 1/2 and national decathlon champion; Bill Vessie of Columbia, streamlined 6 ft. 6 in., 207 pounder who leaped 6-8 for a Millrose record last week, failing at a world indoor mark of 6-9 1/2.

The B. A. A. jump is invariably won at 6-7 or better. It has attracted the world's greatest jumpers since 1932—Walter Marty, Cory Johnson, Al Threadgill, Albritton, Mel Walker, Les Steer, Joshua Williamson.

But Spitz' mark has withstood each and every assault. Closest came Les Steers, the power jumper from California, who subsequently jumped 6-11 for a world record. In 194 Steers up-looked a 6-8 1/2 jump to win the

Bishop Shiel Aids Feller's Youth Program

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (INS)—Bob Feller, famous pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, announced today that he has formed an advisory committee for his drive against juvenile delinquency that includes prominent persons in the political, social, and religious fields.

Feller, whose "youth program" is being underwritten by a national ice cream firm, pointed out today that the committee is not complete. He added that the board members have assured him of their "active support and guidance."

Thus far, the following people have agreed to serve on the committee:

Bishop Shiel, outstanding for his work in the Catholic Youth Organization, Bob Hope, top-flight comedian and co-owner of the Indians, Perry Como, stand-out crooner who is exceptionally popular with the younger set; Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Fr. Flanagan, founder of Boys Town in Nebraska.

Feller, in making the announcement, said:

"I am sure the campaign will be a total success and the real beneficiaries will not be chosen few... but rather, boys and girls everywhere who are sure to feel the good effects of the campaigning which will be waged in their behalf."

Rescued—Despite the fact that the ladder was six feet too short, a fireman rescues Miss Lamar Lawson of Philadelphia from window of her blazing third floor apartment (arrow). She hung by her hands from window ledge. Rescuer guided her feet to top rung, caught her as she released hold and piloted the woman safely to the street.
